The star route thieves will be brought up for trial on the 4th of May. It is hoped that there will be no farce about this business.

The latest estimates of the aggregate amount of the bank, train and stage robberies of Jesse James and his gang, are placed at $256,000. Of this sum James saved but very little.

Talk has begun already of running ex-Secretary of State Hans B. Warner, for Congress in the Eighth district. He would not only make a good run, but he would likewise make a good Congress man.

There is a stock ranch in Texas sixty miles long and forty miles wide, on which 50,000 head of cattle feed. It belongs to William Young and Washington Becker, of Milwaukee, for which they paid $610,000.

The anniversary of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln will be commemorated by the Guard of Honor at the monument in Springfield, Illinois, next Saturday afternoon, the 14th instant. Governor Cullom and others will deliver addresses.

Under the law of last winter Governor Busk has appointed Hon. A. J. Turner, of Portage, Hon. Albert Schaff, chairman of the town board of Lewiston, and Ebenezer Corning, a civil engineer of Portage, members of the Fox River Overflow Committee.

Ex-President Hayes, it is said, will soon be appointed president of a savings bank at Fremont, Ohio. He will make a good president. His example in regard to saving, especially when he was President of the United States, will no doubt operate in favor of the depositors and the bank.

The Inter Ocean, of the 12th, publishes a long but interesting sketch of United States Senator Angus Cameron, of this State, written by one of his admirers in Washington. Like most all other public men, he had his early struggles and much that was discouraging, but his ambition and stout heart carried him to great success.

Mr. E. W. Keyes, of Madison, was in Milwaukee on Wednesday, and when interviewed said he was not a candidate for Congress, as he has been so widely advertised. He also said that Congressman Caswell had been "laid out" by the apportionment fixed up by Senators Price and Rankin. That, no doubt, is even so.

The Hon. George M. Chilcott, of Colorado, who has been appointed United States Senator by Governor Pitkin, is a lawyer by profession. He was elected a member of the territorial Legislature in 1861, he having also filled that position in Nebraska in 1856. He has since represented Pueblo county in the State Legislature. His appointment to the United States Senate gives general satisfaction throughout the State.

A Washington dispatch says the ladies of that city will give a tea party in the rotunda of the Capitol in aid of the Garfield Hospital, will be a great social event. The immense circular room will be modeled somewhat on the Centennial tea party plan, its marble sides draped with flags, and pillars wreathed with flowers. Each State and Territory will have a table, which will be in charge of the auxiliary officers. It will be a grand scene, worthy a journey to Washington to witness.

A Washington dispatch to the Chicago Journal says that the compulsory retirement clause of the army bill is said to be the creation of General Sheridan, who wants General Sherman out of the way; that Sheridan is the favorite of Secretary Lincoln, who recognizes his father's regard for "Little Phil," and Sheridan, Lincoln, Logan and Bragg are said to have worked the plan through. All of which must be taken for what it is worth, with a strong leaning on the doubtful side, Sheridan and Lincoln not being schemers.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says: "If there is such a thing as 'moral insanity' certainly that disease is prevailing to alarming extent among bank tellers and cashiers, in fact seems to be as infectious among them as trichinosis among hogs. A 'victim' of this disease has gotten away with $60,000. His name was Ruth—how unlike the faithful Mobbites,—and he dwelt at Washington. Did the Potomac malarial fads have anything to do with bringing on a diseased order of the liver which terminated in the fell disease?"

The Secretary of State has made a report which shows that the expenses of the Legislature this year foot up $29,899.80, for an eighty-three days' session. Last year the expenses were $26,410.83 for an eighty-three days' session. As an explanation of this great difference it is said that there were about twenty-five long city charters, many of which were re-enrolled, constitutional objections having been found in them after they reached the Executive office, and they were recalled, corrected and re-enrolled. The clerical work was really double that of last winter's session, as the session's laws will show when issued. The laws will make a volume fully twice as large as the session of 1881.

AN UNPLEASANT HOME.

RACINE, Wis., April 12.—William Beck, 12 years of age, committed suicide here this morning by shooting himself in the head. He had been to a dance the night before, and his father, John Beck, a heavy boot and shoe dealer and manufacturer, called him at 7:30 a. m. and spoke to him harshly, telling him if he couldn't do better he would have to leave home. Just as his parents sat down to breakfast they heard a pistol-shot. His mother went to his room and called him, but as he gave no response, she burst the door open and found him pillowed in blood. The brains and blood were oozing from out of a hole in his head at the temporal bone, and a revolver lying on the floor told the tale. He died about 10 o'clock. An inquest brought a verdict of suicide. The family is well known. The boy became despondent because his home was made unpleasant for him, and took his life (it seemed from the statement of his mother) to spite his father.

ROUGH ON THE FAMILY.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 12.—A shocking case of accidental poisoning was reported in this city to-day, in which two deaths resulted. The fatalities occurred in the dwelling of a man named Gegel, who resides on the South Side. It appears that a day or two since he purchased a package of the poison known by the striking appellation of "Rough on Rats," by which he expected to rid his house of the rodent tribe. On Tuesday afternoon some of the preparation was spread on the floor, covered with sugar. The remainder of the package was carelessly left lying upon a table. Toward evening a child less than a year and a half old was taken with spasms, and was found to be eating the poison. Its grandmother, Mrs. Ladoseh, aged 63 years, tasted the mixture to ascertain what it was that had sickened the child, not having been told of the purchase of rat-poison. She was soon taken ill, and they both died yesterday morning, after suffering the most excruciating pain for several hours. Doctors were called in, but their efforts were unavailing. The coroner was notified of the sad occurrence, and has begun a thorough investigation.

MRS. SCOVILLE'S APPEAL.

CHICAGO, April 12.—The proceedings in the county court, the papers in which were filed yesterday, to have Charles J. Guiteau declared insane, were quashed this morning, Judge Loomis refusing to claim probate jurisdiction until the Supreme court has reconsidered its recent decision on that point. The writ was issued owing to the stupidity or officiousness of one of the clerks, as it could have legally issued only through the judge's hands. This was not done, but the mistake was doubtless owing to a misapprehension on the part of the clerk who issued the writ.

CHINESE QUESTION.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The California statesmen have decided to take a rational view of the Chinese matter, and are going right to work to have another bill passed. Mr. Miller and Mr. Page have been in consultation with the President several times within a week, and the result is that they are confident that they can frame a bill which will meet the President's approval, and still be perfectly satisfactory and effective. Mr. Miller is confident that he can get it through without much debate, and if the House will suspend the rules and pass it, he thinks he will have it once more before the President before the close of next week.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

MADISON, April 12.—The Beaver Lake Lumber company, with a capital of $250,000, was organized to-day at Cumberland, in Barron county. The Domestic Organ company has also been formed, with $10,000 capital, and having for its location Racine. The Atlas Exploring & Mining company, with $100,000 capital, was formed, with headquarters at the county-seat of Florence county. The Pelican Boom company, of Lincoln county, was also organized, but without stated capital.

JUMPED HIS BALL.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, April 12.—The bondsman of Charles Lewis, the telegraph operator whose carelessness caused a collision on the Chicago & Northwestern, last summer, near this city, whereby two men were killed and a loss incurred to the company of $100,000, are hotly in pursuit of Lewis, who failed to answer for trial before the district court. He worked at Minneapolis recently and it is now believed he is in Nebraska.

AN OHIO LEAR.

CAMBRIDGE, O., April 12.—John Nassett, a farmer 65 years old, living five miles west of this place, to-day shot his son, John E. Nassett, and then shot himself through the head with a revolver, causing instant death. Elder Fassett had been violent toward his family for years. A year ago he deeded his farm to his son, on condition that he should maintain his father and mother during life. The son married and proposed to build a new house. The father said he would kill him if he did, but the son paid no attention to the threat. To-day, while the son was dressing stone for the foundation of the house, the father crept into the stable twenty-five feet distant, with a rifle, and shot his son through the abdomen. He then went to the bedroom, and placing himself before the mirror, shot himself through the head with a revolver. The physician thinks John E. Nassett cannot recover. He has a wife and infant child.

A CLEAN SWEEP.

OSHKOSH, Wis., April 12.—The Democratic Council late last night turned out all the Republican heads of departments and substituted Democrats. R. J. Wiesbrod is Fire Chief; James Cases, Chief of Police; Charles Barber, City Attorney; R. W. Richman, Poor Overseer, and other minor offices. The Council passed a resolution denouncing the proposition of the Milwaukee, and Lake Winnebago railroad.

FEMALE PHYSICIANS.

Boston, April 12.—The governing board of Harvard college voted, 13 to 12 that it was not advisable for the university to give any assurance or hold out any encouragement that it will undertake the medical education of women by Harvard college in its medical school.

THE FLOODS.

TROY, La., April 11.—There is great suffering among the refugees in the hills about Lake Concordia. From Hempstead creek, for nearly nine miles the hills are covered with rude huts, eight by ten, most of them roofed with pine straw through which the rain pours down upon the occupants. Women and children are huddled together near fires at the open side of the huts, striving to keep warm, with their clothing thoroughly drenched, overcoats which hused in the rain. Iron pots were hung containing the last meal and that was all the food in camp. One woman holding two girls to her breast to shelter them from the driving rain, said they were sick and in need of medicine, and she believed it was due entirely to the fact that they had nothing to eat in addition to the rations. Many are down with sickness. Dr. Campbell, attached to the Times-Democrat's expedition prescribed for eighty-two people, twenty white and sixty-two colored—two-thirds of whom were children under 12 years of age. To add to the horror of the picture, putrid carcasses were lying about. Many cattle, carried to the hills, have been kept on scaffolds, and when they reached high land they could not recuperate, and so perished on all sides.

A HORRIBLE DEATH.

BRIDGESBURG, Pa., April 12.—Portions of the internal organs of Mrs. Lutz, who died yesterday of trichinosis, from eating a half-cooked ham, were examined to-day, and were so alive with trichinae that they could be seen by the naked eye. The other five members of the family are lying at the point of death.

JEANNETTE SURVIVORS.

BOSTON, Mass., April 12.—Two private letters, dated Irkutsk, February 12, 1882, were received in Salem to-day by the family and friends of Raymond Newcomb, the taxidermist on the Jeannette. The survivors are now on the way from Irkutsk to St. Petersburg, and are near Angsburg, Siberian frontier. Newcomb writes that, barring unavoidable delays, the party will arrive in St. Petersburg about the 1st of May. Lieutenant Danenhower was improving rapidly, and Newcomb has been acting as the latter's amanuensis. Every member of the party has gained in health. The tone of the letters is very hopeful and cheerful.

WISCONSIN CENTRAL.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 12.—The contract for the entire equipment of the Schleisling line of the Wisconsin Central company was yesterday let. It includes 6,000 tons of steel rails, six locomotives from the Schenectady works, a large number of elegant passenger coaches, as well as a requisite number of box and flat cars. It has now been decided to begin the grading work within the next ten days at some point between Fond du Lac and Schleislingville, leaving the work above Fond du Lac until a decision shall have been reached in the choice between the Oshkosh and Winnebago routes. The engineering work on the line is in charge of Mr. E. M. Spaulding. The grading contract, it is understood, will be let in the course of the next few days, so that active work can be begun before the expiration of another week.

Deaf as a Post.

Mrs. W. J. Lang, Bethany, Ont., states that for fifteen months she was troubled with a disease in the ear, causing entire deafness. In ten minutes after using THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL she found relief, and in a short time she was entirely cured and her hearing restored. Sold by A. J. Roberts, and Sherer & Co.

A Word About Carving.

It is not alone the fact that the amateur carver misses the joints and tries to cut through the largest bones, that fills him with regret and his lap full of sage and onions. It is the horrible thought that the entire family is looking at him.

No matter how the perspiration may trickle down between his shoulder blades, or how the hot flashes may chase up and down his spinal column, or how much his eyes may be dimmed by unshed tears, the rest of the company never allows its interest to flag a moment.

We remember one time we were called to assume the management of a free-for-all carving tournament at the home of a dove-eyed dumpling, whose kind regard we desired to catch on to as far as possible.

How clearly come back to us now the smiling faces of the guests, the rippling laugh, the bald-headed joke, the thanksgiving conundrum, and all as merry as a marriage bell. We call to mind the girlish laughter of that one whose very existence, as she sat on our left that day, seemed cemented and glued to our own.

As we sharpened the glittering blade on the ringing steel, we felt buoyant and proud. Proud to think how we would slice the white, calm bosom of that deceased hen. Proud to think how in our minds we had laid out the different, pregame points about that old cackler, and in the anticipation of applause glad and free, when we had accomplished the warfare, and victory and stuffing had perched upon our banner.

We softly jabbed the shimmering fork astraddle the breast bone, tore off a few goose pimples from under the wings of the late lamented, gouged out a few shattered fragments from the neck, and tried to cut a sirloin steak off the back. An oppressive gloom seemed to pervade the air. The old hen didn't have her joints where we had laid them out in our mind. She was deformed. She seemed to be a freak of nature.

It rattled us and unnerved us. We gougued wildly at the remains, squirting the gravy right and left, and filling the air with fragments of bread crumbs and sage. By some kind of omission or miscalculation, we made a wild stab at the back of the late lamented hen, and with a frenzy born of repeated defeats and depressing failures, the knife struck the platter with a loud crash, and censing not in its untamed fury, glanced aside, and in an instant buried itself with a sickening thud in the corset of the hired girl. With difficulty we drew out the glittering blade, now ensanguined with the gore of a fellow-creature, wiped it on the table-cloth, and fled into the cold, unsympathetic world, out into the crash and confusion of struggling humanity, to battle on through life under an assumed name. That is why we tremble and turn pale when our past life is inquired into by biographers. That is why a baked fowl makes us quail. That is why we always sign our non de plume to a promissory note. That, too, is why we always travel incog, and without baggage.

Everybody Loses 'Em.

"Pardon me for troubling you, sir, but did you drop a twenty-dollar gold piece?"

The man addressed ran his hand nervously into his various pockets, and replied:

"Well, now, I declare! Is it possible that I was so careless as to drop that coin? Yes, it's gone. I must have lost it close by."

The questioner opened a memorandum-book, took out a pencil, and said:

"Will you favor me with your address?"

This given, the questioner started on, when the man cried:

"Hi, there! Where's the money? Give me that gold piece."

"O, I didn't find any money. I thought this morning in a city like this there must be great losses, and I started out to investigate. Between here and the river I have found seven men that lost twenty-dollar gold pieces, and I expect to run the list up to two hundred before I reach the City Hall. It is fearful to think how common it is getting to lose that particular coin. Good-day, sir."

"Do you love me?" "Yes," answered she, "better than anything else in the world. It's a beautiful night for a moonlight drive." A moonlight drive would cost at least three dollars, and as he agitated seventeen cents in his right trousers' pocket, he surveyed the lunar orb with a knowing gaze and remarked, "I would be so happy to take you, but a wet moon, and you know you are so liable to catch cold, dear." The next morning the disappointed maiden observed to her mother, "Charly and I have quit. He knows a heap about the weather, but he is a perfect ignoramus about me."

The Irishman of the stage and novel is always a rollicking, happy-go-lucky sort of a reckless fellow, with a short-tailed coat, red vest and corduroy trousers, woolen stockings and stout brogans, etc., always ready for a dance or a fight, or for love-making or any other pleasant employment. He always has a laugh on his face, a joke on his lips, and he goes through life with a perpetual "hurroo."

And Katy, she is always presented to us clad in a short woolen gown, her shapely legs enclosed in warm red stockings, and she has a bright red handkerchief about her neck, with good, comfortable shoes, and a coquettish straw hat, a bixom girl who can dance down any lad within ten miles, and can "hurroo" as well as Pat and a trifle better.

Those are lies. The Irishman is the saddest man on the surface of the globe. You may travel a week and never see a smile or hear a laugh. Utter and abject misery, starvation and helplessness are not conducive of merriment.

The Irishman has not only no short-tailed coat, but he considers himself fortunate if he has any coat at all. He has what by courtesy may be called trousers, but the vest is a myth. He has no comfortable woolen stockings, nor is he possessed of the regulation stage shoes. He does not sing, dance or laugh, for he has no place to sing, dance or laugh in. He is a moving pyramid of rags. A man who cuts bog all day, from daylight to dark, whose diet consists of a few potatoes twice a day. Is not much in the humor for dancing all night, even were there a place for him to dance in. And as for jollity, a man with a land agent watching him like a hawk to see how much he is improving his land, with the charitable intent of raising the rent, if by any possibility he can screw it out of him, is not in the mood to laugh, sing, dance or "hurroo." One might as well think of laughing at a funeral. Ireland is one perpetual funeral. The ghastly procession is constantly passing.

There is unquestionably a vast fund of humor in the Irishman which would be delightful could it have proper vent. You hear faint tones of it as it is, but it is in the minor key, and very sad. It always has a flavor of rack-rent in it, a taste of starvation, a suggestion of eviction and death by cold and hunger on the road side. It isn't cheerful. I had much rather have the Irishman silent than to hear this constant of jocularity which is always streaked with blood.

The Irish girl is always comely, and properly clothed and fed, would be beautiful. Still she is comely. Irish landlordism has not been sufficient to destroy her beauty, though it has done its best. But she has no gown of woolen stuff—a cotton slip without underclothing of any kind makes up her costume. The comfortable stockings and stout shoes, and the red handkerchief about her neck, are so many libels upon Irish landlordism. Were My Lord's agent to see such clothing upon a girl, he would immediately raise the rent upon her father, and confiscate those clothes. And he would keep on raising the rent till he was certain that shoes and stockings would be forever impossible. Neither does she dance Pat down at rustic halls, for a most excellent reason, there are no balls, and besides when she has cut and dried a donkey load of peat and walked beside that donkey barefooted in the cold mud twelve miles and back again, and sold that peat for sixpence, she is not very much in the humor for dancing down anyone. On the contrary she is mighty glad to get into her wretched bed of dried leaves and pull over her the potato sack which constitutes her sole covering, and soothed to sleep by the gruntings of the pigs in the wretched cabin, forget landlords and rent, and go off into the land of happiness, which to her is America.

She finds in sleep surcease of sorrow, and besides it refreshes her to the degree of walking barefooted through the grove of walking barefooted through the grove of walking barefooted through the grove to send another load of peat for sixpence, that she may pay more money to My Lord, whose town-house in London and whose mistresses in Paris require a great deal of money. Champagne and the delicacies of the season are always expensive, and My Lord's appetite and the appetite of his wife and mistresses and his children, legitimate and illegitimate, are always voracious. Clearly, then, in no humor for dancing. She has her share to contribute to all these objects. And so she eats her meal of potatoes or stir-about (she never has both at once), and goes into sleep and dreams.—Nashly in Toledo Blade.

It TAKES six years to learn a pig to understand nine words, and all those words put together won't drive him out of a garden.

STOMACH BITTERS

For a quarter of a century or more Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been the leading brand for stomach bitters. It is made of purest materials and is absolutely pure. It is the only stomach bitters that is made in America. It is the only stomach bitters that is made in America. It is the only stomach bitters that is made in America.

The Power of Being a Nuisance.

One of the forces not duly rated in this world is the power involved in making one's self disagreeable. Emerson has written finely in favor of tact and the power of persuasion; how it makes its way through the world, obtains favors denied even to princes and potentates, and lays tribute upon wealth and culture. All are glad to serve its possessor. Like the centurion, it can say to one man do this and he doth it, especially if it is a woman who says it. But on the other hand there is such force in one's ability to carry a point by the simple process of making everybody uncomfortable until it is accomplished, that one may well pause in deciding the respective claims to superiority of those two very different sorts of talent. It is true that in the fable the sun made the traveler take off his cloak whereas the wind made him draw it more closely about him, and the story is told to illustrate the superiority of gentleness to bluster. But it is to be borne in mind that only by making it self disagreeable and the traveler uncomfortable did the sun succeed.

The child who has lived long enough to scold, cry and kick, in order to call attention to its wants, and refuses to cease making a nuisance of itself until the needs are gratified, has already learned the potency of this lever in human affairs. The woman who, beginning an acquaintance with her persistent suitor, by a little wholesome aversion, ends by marrying him "in order to get rid of him," pays a practical and overwhelming tribute to the advantages arising from a capacity to make one's self as uncomfortable as one chooses. Women understand the infinite variety of possibilities that lie latent in this force. They know that by beginning early and being constant in prayer, there is nothing from a seal sack to a house with a mansard roof that is not possible to them. The unjust judge realized it when, lest she should weary him by her continual coming, he avenged the importunate woman of her adversary. The book agent, the lightning rod man, the life insurance solicitor, the hackman, the beggar in rags and the leger in broadcloth and silk, have all learned the degrees that can be conferred in this school of life. The office seeker, who devotes all his time to getting office, knows well the mighty force that lies in his sneering, vigilant, perpetual presence, asking by letter, and in person, both at the rising of the sun and the going down thereof, at midday and midnight, for the place he wants. The collector of debts is armed with it, and it is the measure of his success.

The autograph hunter is the embodiment of it, and it is his crowing glory that he have attained the distinction of being cursed as he had been, for being an unmitigated nuisance, and, at times, even in the breasts of the pious, thought that he too deep, not only tears, but for words not fit for polite society. Yet it is in proportion to this supreme capacity for making one's self odious that the autograph hunter exhibits, like the Indian, the trophies of his hunt. Nor does it seem to require the brazen hardness of age and experience. Owing to the fact that age puts by this sort of thing with other follies, it is the youth that most indulge and most exist in this lion-laiting pastime.

Selfish Fritz.
Mose Schaumburg and Gilhooley were talking about matters and things, on Austin avenue, when Mose Schaumburg remarked that Fritz, the saloon-keeper, was the best friend he had on earth.

"What does he do for you?" asked Gilhooley.

"Vel, he vash so good, and he loves me so much, dot ven I has had enough, he refuses to give me any more, and lets me not go home did I vash so."

"S'you think Fritz did that because he loves you?"

"Nonsense; he don't let you go home tight, because then your wife would never let you come again, and he would lose his best customer. He knows what sort of a wife you have got."

"Is dot so?" said Mose, drawing a sigh, and breaking off the conversation.

Paris Oysters.
It always made me mad to see a Frenchman sit down to a plate of raw French oysters—for when he did so he did it with an air which seemed to declare that of all countries none save France could raise an oyster, and none save Frenchmen knew how to eat an oyster. Yet the poor creatures, in all of their self-conceit, sat thus before a plate of their, coppery bivalves with naught of condiment before them, save salt, pepper and vinegar. And I was obliged to gaze on all this ignorant pomposity, as to the oyster, with visions before my eyes of the palatial oyster saloons in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, where human culinary skill has reached its highest flight in dealing with the oyster; and the "roast," "pan roast," "fried," "fried in crumbs," "fried in butter," "plain stew," "boiled," "Boston stew" and "broil," all attest to the range and scope of American ingenuity in dealing with the king of bivalves. And to regard these conceited Frenchmen looking as if they had reached the acme of human perfection in dealing with the oyster, when entirely ignorant of America's triumph in oyster cooking, and I unable to beat the vestige of an idea into their vainglorious brains!—Paris Letter.

Nearly a Miracle.
E. Asenith Hall, Binghamton, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for several months with a dull pain through left lung and shoulders. I lost my spirits, appetite and color, and could with difficulty keep up all day. My mother procured some BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS; I took them as directed, and have felt no pain since first week after using them, and am now quite well." Price, $1.00; trial size, 10 cents.

Dated Janesville, Wis., April 7, 1882.

USEFUL HINTS.

A PIECE of zinc placed on the live coals in a hot stove will effectually clean out a stove-pipe, the vapors produced carrying off soot by chemical decomposition.

AN Eastern physician states that in families that roast their own coffee diphtheria cannot gain a foothold, as the pungent aroma of the roasting coffee effectually destroys the germs of the disease.

VIOLET INK STAINS.—To remove, without trouble, the stains of violet ink caused by the upsetting of a bottle of that fluid upon any garment, lay it immediately in clear, cold water and rub out the ink as far as it will come out. Then lay it out on the grass, when it will disappear. Lay calico goods out with the wrong side to the sun.

To keep machinery from rusting: Take one-half ounce of camphor; dissolve in one pound of melted lard; take off the scum and mix in as much fine black lead as will give it an iron color. Clean the machinery and smear with the mixture. After twenty-four hours rub clean with a soft linen cloth. It will keep clean for months under ordinary circumstances.

GOOD WASHING FLUID.—Take one pound of washing soda, one-quarter of a pound of unsalted lime and one gallon of water. Boil up and when cold pour off clear. Use one teaspoonful to a boiler of clothes, and it will take out almost any stains, leaving the garment clear and white, even though it has scarcely been rubbed at all. It is very simple, and when washing is done in the house a wonderful labor-saver. It will not cause the slightest injury to the most delicate fabrics. Not half the injury that the washboard is to even the stoutest goods.

To Stop Nose-Bleed.—The Scientific American gives the following novel plan: The best remedy for bleeding at the nose, as given by Dr. Gleason in one of his lectures, is in the vigorous motion of the jaws as if in the act of chewing. In the case of a child a wad of paper should be placed in its mouth, and the child should be instructed to chew it hard. It is the motion of the jaws that stops the flow of blood. The remedy is so very simple that many will feel inclined to laugh at it, but it never has been known to fail in a single instance, even in very severe cases.

MOTHERS AND NURSES cannot be too careful about the soap they use on the little ones. Few but physicians know how many of the so-called skin diseases among children are caused by the use of adulterated, poisonous soap. An analysis of several cakes of the pretty and perfumed toilet soaps that are sold on the streets showed the presence of ground glass, soluble glass, silica, pipe-clay, rotten stone, borax, plaster of paris, tin crystal, magnesia, pumice stone, oat-meal and other substances, which are added to give the soap weight, toughness or clearness. The common colorings are vermilion, Venetian red and carmine, ultramarine green, pot pigment green, copperas, Spanish brown, ultramarine blues, yellow and scarlet anilines and burnt umber. Many of the perfuming ingredients, though harmless to themselves, become locally poisonous by adhesion. Adding the dangers from all these to the rancid, diseased, putrid qualities of grease used, and mothers may well be appalled at the permanent evils their neat-looking, delicately scented blocks of toilet soap contain, ready to be released whenever moistened and applied to baby's body.

A LONDON journalist says that he had occasion to have the same prescription put up at the druggists' stores in various cities in Europe at the following charges: Bucharest, 12.50 francs; Athens, 5 francs; Munich, 15 francs; Stuttgart, 4.15 francs; Paris, 12.50 francs, and London, 8 francs.

AN Iowa dog has cost its owner $950 in damages for bites, and the man declares that impetuous neighbors hang around on purpose to be bitten, knowing that he settled the claims promptly. It is hard to decide whether to class this a fact or a biting sarcasm.

The Value of Odds and Ends.
A great deal of valuable material is lost by a disregard of odds and ends. If there is much waste, there is likely to be no dividend. In the log-house of some enterprising emigrant we may see wonderful results in the way of furnishing by means of a few deal boxes and half-barrels, and a few yards of cheap chintz. A skillful housekeeper will produce serviceable carpets and carpets, made of strips of worn-out garments, and other mysterious materials, which only an expert can be supposed to know anything about. A use has been found for almost everything; the parings of tinware are about the only refuse that is thrown away. Coal-lust is made up into solid lumps; which furnish excellent fuel. Some of the uses to which cast-off material is put are rather odd. Stone bottles, turned upside down, make a good pavement for foot-paths in Canada. The way in which the odds and ends of food are prepared and served up in foreign markets for the poorer class of customers, is worth noticing. While standing on the Rialto, in Venice—"the place where merchants once did congregate"—we saw an old woman, who had just purchased a handful of snails for her dinner, haggling over one of the snails which she thought imperfect. What would we think of economy like this?

Force of Habit.
He was a nice and very young man, and the first day in the factory asking him to help in "checking off" and "calling back" the sizes of certain goods. All went well until the youth in finishing up a string of numbers called out: "Fifty-five, eleven, forty-four—Kenoi!" A great solemn hush fell over the rest of the clerks as the old man called the blushing lad up to the desk and desired an explanation, and the misguided youth put his foot in deeper by stammering out that it was only "force of habit" made him say it. The old gentleman eyed him calmly for a moment, and then laying down seventy-five cents for his day's wages, said: "Boy, 'take the pot' and go and renounce your sins."

Catching Herring in Winter.
In winter there is a different and a novel method of capturing herring. Live mackerel, go in schools, and for some reason they will always follow a light. The fishermen know this and provide themselves with torches made of birch bark or cotton batting, saturated with kerosene oil, and on dark nights row along the shores with a torch in the bow of the boat. The boat is rowed as swiftly as possible, and when a "school" is struck the chase begins. The herring dart after the boat, coming close up to it in swarms, and while one of the men rows the other dips up the herring with

A POPULAR TONIC

For Weak Lungs and Consumption. No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throats, Debilitated Constitutions, Weakness of the Lungs, or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the endorsement of physicians, and the praise of the celebrated "Tolu, Rock and Rye." The repeated and continued use of the article everywhere has created a demand for its real merits. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulating, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be added to convince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic merits. The compound is of a pleasant taste and agreeable flavor, will stimulate the system, and bring about a healthy condition of the lungs, and pulmonary weakness of the relief to be secured by the use of Tolu, Rock and Rye.—Chicago Times. dec12dawly

THE MASQUERADE.

A Brilliant Party and Novel and Interesting Masks.

The third annual masquerade ball given by the Janesville Guards, took place last night at Armory hall. It was one of the largest ever given by the military in this city, and the most brilliant. The attendance was not only large, but the costumes were rich and varied, and far more costly and elaborate than are usually seen at masquerades. Some of the characters represented were especially fine, and many of them deserve personal mention. The most perfect German character ever assumed in this city we venture to accord to Mr. Emmet McGowan. His make-up was not only splendid, but his deportment was thoroughly and naturally Teutonic, and in this character he appeared from first to last. Others that attracted attention, and elicited applause, were those of Mr. J. I. Shea and Mr. Henry Murphy, who assumed Irish characters and did so with remarkable skill. The great variety of masks and costumes, the large attendance, and the brilliant lighting of the spacious hall, made the scene one of much more than ordinary interest. The masks were removed about eleven o'clock, and to the excellent music of Anderson's band, dancing continued until early morning. The receipts of the evening were quite large which made this delightful gathering a profound success. The following ladies appeared in costume:

AMUSEMENTS.

THE FRENCH SPY.

The Cartland-Murray Combination closed its engagement last evening at Myers Opera house by acting "The French Spy," or the "Fall of Algiers." It is an excellent military drama in three acts, and although there was some hesitating in giving the lines by some of the actors at the beginning of the play, before the drama was concluded, it proved a sumptuous feast for all who were present. There are some excellent characters in "The French Spy," but the chief of these is the Spy herself, taken by Grace Cartland. She did some admirable acting in the trill characters she assumed last night, and it was all the more difficult from the fact that she spoke not one word during the entire play. Miss Cartland is remarkably strong in many particulars, and she will be remembered with as much pleasure as any actress who has appeared in Janesville for a long time. The support last night was good. Mr. John Murray who, by the way, is the husband of Miss Cartland, acted the part of "Tony Bayard," and provoked the laughter of the evening. He is an excellent comedian and knows when not to say too much. Among the Arabs, there were two very fine characters, Achmet Bey, Dey of Algiers, taken by Mr. A. F. Brooke, who did some strong work; and Mohammed, acted by Mr. J. W. Dixon, who is entitled to special mention for his excellent acting.

The entertainment last night begun with "The Irish Emigrant," which was a very clever piece of comedy. The audience last night was much larger than on either of the previous evenings, but the character of the play and the manner in which it was produced, merited a full house.

THE WORLD.

The next on the boards at Myers Opera house will be "The World," now having a large run in Chicago. It will be here on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, and will draw well.

The Weather.

DIED.

GROESBECK—In Johnston, April 5th, 1882, MRS. GROESBECK, aged 85 years. Mrs. Groesbeck, whose maiden name was Stover, was a native of Pittstown, Rensselaer county, New York; was married in 1838 and about five years afterward removed to Oswego county, New York. Of four children, two daughters died in childhood, and two sons survive here, one living in Oswego county, and the other in this place. Her husband died in 1875, of gradual paralysis, which confined him to the house for eighteen years, during all which time she had the whole care of him ever manifesting the unwearied love and patience of a devoted wife. She was converted at thirteen years of age, and was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal church, for the long period of fifty years. Her piety was of that humble, unobtrusive kind which showed itself less in words than in deeds, in a holy, consistent life; although her unhesitating testimony to the reality and blessedness of the religion of Christ, was not withheld when suitable occasions called for it. In all the relations of the family, the neighborhood, and the church, she won and received the respect, confidence and affection of her associates, even of those who enjoyed but a brief or slight acquaintance with her. Having served the Master long and faithfully, she was suddenly called to rest which remains to the people of God. On the morning of the 5th instant, she experienced an attack of paralysis, which proved fatal about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, leaving little or no consciousness, apparently, of her condition. The funeral was attended on the 8th; sermon by presiding elder, Rev. A. I. Mead, Rev. W. F. Miller, of Milton, assisting; the other services, "Is that a death bed where the Christian lies? Yes—but not his, 'tis Death itself there dies." Com.
